Product Introduction

Steel Self-Colour Fixed Pin Butt Hinges are manufactured from steel and supplied either as self-colour, or brass plated and zinc plated decorative fancy finish. The cheap steel butt hinges consists of 2 leaves and a connecting pin which secures the leaves which pivot around this pin. Most steel hinges have a fixed pin which means the connecting pin is secured in the hinge or with button top and bottom. Therefore, the pin cannot be removed. Steel hinges have many applications form larger sizes for hanging doors to the smallest for boxes and cases. However, Steel Loose Pin Butt Hinges are available, used in conjunction with internal doors. The pin can be removed which facilitates the removal of the door without having to undo the fixing screws. The easy-maintainable light Butt Hinges are suitable for medium duty external or internal doors. The plated finishes protect the hinge to a certain degree from the wear and tear that is associated with long term usage of doors. This narrow pattern butt is secure and cannot be easily removed.

Product Feature

Steel Fixed Loose Pin and Ball Bearing Butt Hinges are the typical type of hinges and standard choice for interior or outside doors. The cheapest Steel Self-Colour Fixed Pin Butt Hinges are good for doors that are not too heavy and used too much. A butt hinge has two rectangular leaves with knuckles in the middle, joined together by a pin. It's the most common hinge used on doors, whether full-sized or cabinet. You can buy butt hinges with removable or fixed pins. The fixed pin makes it more secure because the door can't be opened by removing the pin. The high quality Steel Ball Bearing Butt Hinges are more durable and last longer. The bearings make doors operate more smoothly than plain bearing butt hinges, so they're the best choice for entry doors and doors that are used a lot. Spring-loaded butt hinges contain a spring that automatically closes a door. Use them on screen doors or cabinets. Butt hinges are the workhorses of the hinge world, opening and closing doors everywhere over and over again. Whether you're replacing worn hinges or using them on a new door, just contact us for the discount and free samples.
